Creative Drama for Emotional Support
Activities and Exercises for Use in the Classroom
‘An invaluable resource for all practitioners in schools who support the social and emotional development of children and young people. The wide range of issues and accompanying activities are presented in an informative and clear structure with guidance on potential safeguarding and child protection issues to help ensure “safe” practice. An absolute must for all those who deal with “challenging” behaviour in our mainstream schools; the book you have all been waiting for!'

— Alison Chown, Play Therapist, Supervisor and Educational Trainer

‘As a teacher of Technology, having such an accessible and easy to use resource, packed with information that helps with recognising the warning signs of emotional distress and how this can present in a child’s behaviour, is fantastic. With super ideas for drama-based games and activities that provide creative and fun ways to overcome these challenges, and with the additional benefit of providing guidance on when and how to engage other professional help when necessary, it’s a must read.’

— Tom Vaughan, Teacher of Design and Technology, South West England

‘A remarkable resource which guides teachers and staff to skilfully utilize drama, a valuable but often overlooked means of supporting troubled children in the classroom. The author, a professional drama therapist, deftly combines theory and practice by identifying familiar behavioural issues, providing insight regarding the issues and clearly describing innovative techniques and drama activities to foster emotional growth and healing. Helpfully, a number of the activities are useable or adaptable for younger children. Whether coping with a stressful classroom problem or waiting for delayed special services, this much needed book is a life line for all.’

— Dr. Carol Woodard, Professor Emeritus, State University College at Buffalo, New York and author of Make-Believe Play and Story-Based Drama in Early Childhood

‘Deeply impressive, moving and accessible. This book takes the reader on an insightful journey into the world of the troubled child whilst demystifying creative drama, leaving you empowered with a tool kit of practical, structured drama techniques that can be embedded into the heart of any nurturing classroom.’

— Debbie Shotter, Senior Educational Psychologist, Associate Fellow of the British Psychological Society
by the same author

Dramatherapy and Family Therapy in Education
Essential Pieces of the Multi-Agency Jigsaw
Penny McFarlane and Jenny Harvey
Foreword by Sue Jennings
ISBN 978 1 84905 216 0
eISBN 978 0 85700 451 2

of related interest

Creative Coping Skills for Children
Emotional Support through Arts and Crafts Activities
Bonnie Thomas
ISBN 978 1 84310 921 1
eISBN 978 1 84642 954 5

Make-Believe Play and Story-Based Drama in Early Childhood
Let’s Pretend!
Carol Woodard with Carri Milch
ISBN 978 1 84905 899 5
eISBN 978 0 85700 366 9

Helping Children to Cope with Change, Stress and Anxiety
A Photocopiable Activities Book
Deborah M. Plummer
Illustrated by Alice Harper
ISBN 978 1 84310 960 0
eISBN 978 0 85700 366 9

The Big Book of Therapeutic Activity Ideas for Children and Teens
Inspiring Arts-Based Activities and Character Education Curricula
Lindsey Joiner
ISBN 978 1 84905 865 0
eISBN 978 0 85700 447 5

Creating Children’s Art Games for Emotional Support
Vicky Barber
ISBN 978 1 84905 163 7
eISBN 978 0 85700 409 3
Compulsive lying ............................................... 87
Depression .......................................................... 91
Lack of self-esteem/confidence ......................... 96
Learnt behaviour ................................................. 103
Neglect ............................................................... 106
Nightmares ......................................................... 111
Parental separation ............................................. 115
Sibling rivalry ..................................................... 122
Socially inappropriate behaviour ...................... 129
Speech problems ................................................... 134
Trauma and shock ............................................... 139

Conclusion .......................................................... 143
What to do at the end of a session ...................... 143

Appendix 1: Group Bonding Games ...................... 149
Appendix 2: Index of Issues and Supporting Activities .... 151
Appendix 3: References, Useful Resources and Further Reading ........ 153
Index ................................................................. 155
feelings in his head as blue. This child had retreated so far into himself to avoid the damaging outside world that he was no longer able to ‘feel’ anything very much at all. In these instances carefully measured work needs to be done to encourage the child to get back in touch with his feelings, but this is work for the qualified therapist and should not be attempted without adequate training.

Another potentially referable situation is when, during an angry episode, a child’s temperature rises to the extent that he sweats profusely. If this occurs repeatedly it may be evidence of a psychotic aspect underlying the anger and should be referred to the appropriate professional (see ‘Severe case scenarios’, pp.26–27).

Activities

MR. ANGRY MAN

Resources

Paper
Pencils, coloured pens

Application

This can be done with a small group but is more effective if used with an individual child. It is also applicable to other feelings such as anxiety, fear, panic, jealousy, etc. It is not suitable for a child who is in the throes of a tantrum but could be used with children who suffer from repeated angry episodes, when they are in a calm state of mind and able to reason.

Objectives

The aim of this exercise is to enable the child to feel in control of his ‘big feelings’ by externalizing them. That is to say that by personifying them, or making them into another person, the child can view them (or it) objectively and not become subjectively overwhelmed.

Exercise

- Tell the child that you understand how he feels. Say that it’s like there is a Mr. Angry Man who has a habit of sneaking up and taking over almost without him realizing what is happening.
- Ask him if he would like to draw this Mr. Angry Man.
- When Mr. Angry Man has been drawn a dialogue can be instigated in which the child can tell Mr. Angry Man how fed up he is with him sneaking up and that he wants him to go away, etc.

- If applicable, a role-play exercise can be used in which the child rehearses a situation where Mr. Angry Man might sneak up. The drawing can then be used for the child to face Mr. Angry Man and tell him to ‘go away’.

- Additionally, the process can be turned into a kind of game in which the child has to see if he can outwit Mr. Angry Man and banish him before he takes over.

- To help with this some breathing techniques can be used the minute the child feels Mr. Angry Man is about to pounce (see ‘The Saucepan’, pp.52–54 and ‘Breathing techniques’, pp.145–148).

THE VOLCANO

![Volcano Image]

Resources

- Lengths of coloured material
- Cushions
- A3 card
- Coloured pens
- Sticky paper

Application

This is useful as an energy releasing exercise but must be performed in an environment that is safe and free from sharp objects, for example, cornered tables, in case the child throws himself around excessively.